Wayne Johnson to be sworn in as New Mexico State Auditor

SANTA FE, N.M.— Bernalillo County Commissioner and business owner Wayne Johnson will be sworn in as New Mexico State Auditor at 1:30 p.m. today, Monday, December 4. Chief Justice of the New Mexico Supreme Court Judy Nakamura will swear in Johnson in the Secretary of State's office in Santa Fe.

"I thank Governor Martinez for her faith in me and the opportunity to make our state a better place. Making sure we are holding necessary agencies and people accountable is critical to maintaining public trust. I look forward to serving the people of New Mexico," stated Johnson.

Martinez tapped Johnson to fill the remaining term of Tim Keller, who was elected Mayor of Albuquerque on November 14. The term expires in November of 2018.
