EMBRACING EXCELLENCE THROUGH DIVERSITY + INCLUSION

Stewardship for the Future

On April 25, 2019 the Office of the State Auditor (OSA) recognized both National Take Your Daughters and Sons to Work Day and Earth Day with a series of fun events throughout the day.

We first celebrated the unofficial National holiday, Take Your Daughters and Sons to Work Day, joining over 3.5 million workplaces and 37 million Americans exposing students to future job possibilities and the value of an education. This is especially important for the young people of New Mexico, as our state lags behind many others in graduation rates for students.

In addition, the OSA recognized and celebrated Earth Day with our staff and young visitors. The OSA recognizes our stewardship of the natural environment for our children and as such engaged in a tree planting ceremony to demonstrate our commitment to both the environment and our future.

“I was thrilled to host such bright young people at the OSA...”said Auditor Colón “I know the value of investing in our youth first hand and I am proud to honor this tradition of workforce development while also having the opportunity to demonstrate support for our environment.”
